Season For Tourist. The Best Time To Travel

October 11, 2021

Season for tourist. Why it is important for each person who loves nature and travel? Many travelers don't know when they should start to pack their bags. And the most interesting thing here is that many travel magazines impose their subjective point of view. This point of view has already become a kind of general stereotype.

Namely, they can offer you to visit Japan during the cherry blossom season and Turkey during the summer. Then if you want to go to Lapland, they more likely will send you there in the winter. Because Santa Claus will definitely ride you on a sleigh and allow you to hug a deer. But we don't want to joke.

Season For Tourist. How To Choose It Correctly

Some travel agencies are neutral and do not know what season to recommend. But we have more specific opinion. We don't want people to adapt to the schedule of the tourist business. Our task is only to take the nature into account and its facts. Of course, many people are too busy to choose the time of their vacation. But let's be objective, this is also your choice.

What Is The Best Season To Travel? We Know The Best Time

We created the world map of the nature and climate. But we also went further and discovered a new thing, which may seem subjective at first sight. But many people will understand it and grow from the field subjectivity into the field of objectivity. It is about the connection of seasons, such as nature and climate with temperament. And this thing may predetermine the best season for tourist to visit any country or place.

There are different geographic regions and on our map of eight groups of nature. There is also temperaments are indicated. In fact, we came to the conclusion that a certain nature looks best for human eyes, mood, appetite and activity only at certain time of the year. Natural lighting at this time is also looking better. But in order to see and understand this, we had to watch many photos and videos from different regions at different times of the year. After that we remember all these differences and put them on our map.

And Finally We Got This:

The choleric temperament of nature looks best in winter. The melancholic temperament of nature is best in autumn. The sanguine nature is the most beautiful in summer. While spring is always pleasant in those regions where there is a phlegmatic type of nature on a map. It is at this time of the year, the nature looks best with its weather and lighting.

This forms the best season for tourist in any country of the world.

Therefore, you need to go to certain places on the map at a certain season. Tourists who visit such places at the right time of the year, will get a new experience of the local nature, atmosphere and climate. And they will not be disappointed. After all, it is a good compensation for the travel expenses.

You also need to remember, that in the Southern Hemisphere, winter begins in June and ends in August. A spring begins in September and ends in November. This will help you to properly organize the plan and time of your trip.

How To Use Our Map?

For example, you want to visit Norway. Take our nature map here (https://worldtypology.com/climate-and-nature-for-you/), and find this country on it:
On the map, Norway is marked with the letter "m", which is a temperament of a melancholic. Therefore, you should visit Norway in autumn, if you want to admire the local beauty of nature and its atmosphere. This is the best time and season for tourist to visit this country.

You want to travel to Argentina or central and northern Australia. These areas are marked on the map with the letters "ph", which means they are phlegmatic. Therefore, we recommend that you enjoy the nature of these places in the spring. But since both countries are in the Southern Hemisphere, you need to come there in September, October or November. You can also check the correctness of such information even remotely.

Below is the nature at certain times of the year. The photo below was taken in Norway. The sky in Norway is more often overcast and this photo was taken at just such a time. By this photo you can judge for yourself which of the four seasons in Norway looks more interesting, energetic and lively:

Below, you can also watch a video made in Norway to get a closer look into its regular nature, weather and understand which time of the year is the best in terms of colors, energy and natural light:
